RESCUE SHIP LANDS IN NEW YORK PORT

New York, April 19—Captain Smith shot himself on the bridge.

Other officers secured a revolver and ammunition from the library, but the crazed captain rushed to the bridge and shot himself through the temple.

The chief engineer, likewise succumbed, and three Italians were killed in a struggle for the lifeboats.

The passing of the captain and engineer in temporary insanity became necessary before the ship surrendered to endure his life.

NUMBER LOST IS PLACED NOW AT 1,595

SURVIVORS NUMBER 745, MOSTLY WOMEN; SIX DIE FROM INJURIES

CAPTAIN SMITH DIES BY OWN HAND ON THE BRIDGE OF SHIP

John Jacob Astor and Major Butt Prove Real Heroes; Aid Women and Keep Back a Mob---Both Perish

BULLETIN

New York, April 19—The total toll of lives lost in the Titanic disaster number sixteen hundred and one. The steamer Carpathia brought in seven hundred and forty-five survivors. Fifteen hundred and ninety-six went down with the ship. Six died from exposure and injuries after being rescued. Prominent men whose death was feared are now known to have perished. Survivors, while in life boats plainly saw the Titanic sink and heard the band playing "Nearer My God to Thee." There was no panic, all the women were saved except those who refused to leave their husbands, among these was Mrs. Straus. President Ismay denies that he was the first one into the life boat. Major Butt, President Taft's aide and personal friend, and John Jacob Astor were among the real heroes. Butt is reported to have stood at the steerage passage with an iron bar in his hand defending the women from the maddened men. The vessel broke in two and sank with a terrific explosion. The Titanic was going over twenty knots an hour when struck. There was but little shock, the ship struck the iceberg a glancing blow and ripped a great hole in side. Captain Smith shot himself and died on the bridge of his ship.

One survivor does not know that the Titanic sank carrying down with it his mother, father, and sister. He is Travers Allison, aged eleven months, and is now at the Hotel Manhattan, with his nurse. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Allison and three year-old sister, Loraine, who were left on the Titanic deck. H. Haven, of Indianapolis, one of the survivors, said that in the rush for the life boats, many in their wild frenzy, jumped into the sea. As they rowed away the Titanic buckled amidships and sank. "It was below freezing," he said. "Neither the men nor the women in our boat had on wraps and intense suffering ensued. Several of them died before we reached the rescue ship. The officer in charge decided it was better to bury them, they were weighted and sank in the sea. We could see similar burials taking place from other lifeboats all about us."

New York, April 19.—Seven hundred and forty-five persons, mostly women, sick in heart and body wrote into the annals of maratime history today the loss of the biggest steamer ever built. They were survivors of the Titanic which went down, colors flying, band playing, captain on bridge, causing death to fifteen hundred and ninety-five persons. With one voice they told of the splendid heroism of those who remained behind. The following facts stand out in bold relief:

Titanic was making twenty-one knots an hour.

None at first thought she would sink.

She remained afloat over two hours.

Iceberg ripped open her bowels below the waterline.

Captain Smith averted instant panic by a terse appeal to the crew of "Be British, my men."

New York, April 19—Lady Duff Gordon, who was saved in one of the last life boats, said: "The panic was beginning to seize the passengers when our boat left the Titanic. Men tried to enter our boat, but were forced back at the point of Captain Smith's revolver. Several were killed not to order was restored. Just as we pushed off the side a man rushed out to get aboard, not heeding the command to get back, he was shot and killed instantly but fell in the boat at our feet, and remained there untouched until we reached the Carpathia. I saw bodies in the water in all directions, the poor people could not have lived long." Thomas Whitely, a waiter, one of the survivors, said that Marconi Operator Phillips, stuck to his post to the last and then jumped. He was pulled aboard a raft but died later and was buried at sea with three others of the crew.

ISMAY IS GRILLED BY SENATOR RAYNOR

(By Associated Press.)

Washington April 18—Senator Isidore Rayner in the senate bitterly assailed President Ismay, charging that Captain Smith was acting under his orders to make a remarkably speedy passage.

"Ismay should be held responsible," he said and the civilized nations of the world would applaud the criminal prosecution of the management of the White Star line.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, April 19—President Ismay on stand today denied emphatically that the Titanic was running at full speed.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, April 19—Captain Rostron, who followed President Ismay on the stand, wept when he told the story of the prayers held on the rescuing vessel after the survivors were picked up. When he arrived on the scene he said they could see all of the life boats within a radius of three miles. Icebergs were floating all about. Survivors acted magnificently.

New York, April 19—President Ismay told the senate investigating committee his story of the disaster.

Asked for circumstances of his escape, he Chairman Smith, he said almost in a whisper:

"One of the boats was being filled. Officers called to know if there were more women to go. There were none. No passengers were on deck. As the boat lowered I got in."

New York, April 19—How the White Star liner Titanic, the largest ship afloat, sank off the Grand Banks of New Foundland last Monday morning, carrying to their death 1,601 of the 2,201 persons aboard, was told to the world in all its awful details for the first time last night with the arrival in New York of the Cunard liner Carpathia bearing the exhausted survivors of the calamity. Of the great facts that stand out from the account of the tragedy, these are the most salient:

The death list has increased rather than decreased. Six persons died after being rescued. The list of prominent persons lost stands as previously reported.

Practically every woman and child, with the exception of those who refused to leave their husbands, were saved. The survivors of the life boats saw the lights on the stricken vessel glimmer to the last, heard her band playing and saw the doomed husbands on her deck and heard their groans and cries when the vessel sank.

Accounts vary as to the extent of the disorder on board. Not only was the Titanic tearing through the night

WEIGHTMAN WILL ASK IMMUNITY

BROTHER OF HUSBAND MURDERER WILL BE TRIED BEFORE HUSTON

Judge A. H. Huston on the docket docket will set a trial date in the case of Montrose Weightman charged with the murder of his sister-in-law, Florence Crawford. The Ardmore Ledger of last week said that the grand jury, at the April term, had indicted Weightman for the murder of Mrs. Crawford, his brother's wife.

The indictment charges that Weightman did shoot and kill Mrs. Crawford with a pistol, and that the killing was premeditated and done with malice aforethought.

Assistant County Attorney Stringer in charge of the prosecution, said that he had information that other than the defendant and the deceased were in the house at the time of the murder. Weightman was charged with the murder of his brother, Charles Weightman, in the county jail here last fall.
