ABBEVILLE, S. C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1912.

ESTABLISHED 1844

Gov. Blease in Anderson.

Anderson, April 13.—A heated verbal exchange between Gov. Core L. Blease and Representative F. M. Cary of Oconee county created considerable excitement in the midst of a speech by the governor here today. In defending his record the governor too occasion to criticize his political enemies, mentioning the members of the dispensary investigating committee which has made unsuccessful efforts to have the governor appear and testify to alleged improper acts of the old winding-up commission. He called particular attention to Mr. Carey in the audience, saying Mr. Carey had stated "that all he wants to know is what side I am on, then he will take the opposite side."

When Mr. Carey denied it and asked the governor his authority for such a statement, the latter replied: "I don't want to speak to you or have anything to do with you for the way you have been treating me on that committee."

The governor said he had read it in the State.

In referring later to same committee he declared:

Doesn't Like Committee

"That is a nice, sweet-smelling sort of committee. Talked about making me come before them. That's a pretty sort of something to make a decent person do anything. I didn't do it, and by the eternal gods I'm not going to. Where is Tom Felder? If they will get Felder back into the State of South Carolina, and give me 12 men, Bleasesites or not, in any county, I'll furnish enough evidence to convict him of attempting to bribe a State officer. If I fail to give enough evidence to convict I agree right now to resign from the governorship and go to the Philippines."

More than 1,000 people heard Gov. Blease speak.

He paid especial attention to State Senator Sullivan and some of the members of the lower house from this county.

After an invocation by Rev. W. T. Myers of Pelzer, the governor began, first touching upon the 1911 general assembly. He stated that that body appropriated one-half million dollars more than it arranged to collect.

Governor Blease said that when the 1912 general assembly met an organization was perfected, the object being to defeat his reelection to the governor's chair. He said that Mr. Cary, a member of the Oconee county delegation, stated on the floor of the house that all he wanted to know about a measure is whether it has the approval of the governor, and if it did he was against it.

At this stage Mr. Cary entered the lists with his questions.

Gov. Blease said that he has at all times stood for an impartial government.

On Special Judges

He explained his side of the controversy over the appointment of special judges, claiming that his motive in refusing to commission some other person when a circuit judge was disengaged was to save expense.

The governor stated that he favors building up the schools, but is unalterably opposed to the taxes of the white people going to educate the negroes.

Gov. Blease charged that the editor of the State is doing more harm among the negroes than education is doing. He said that when the white men arise to the defense of the women of the State that the editor of the State makes the negro brute out a hero, and calls the white men murderers.

"As for me, if the commission of the governor's office stands between me and the protection of the women of our State, then I will tear up my commission and go to their defense," he declared.

The governor wants to know what Winthrop college is going to do with the $242,000 it is going to get this year, $90,000 of which comes from the Peabody board. He said he was a friend of Winthrop, but he thought that the rural schools, which exist only for four or five months with a scarcity of teachers, are more in need of money than Winthrop.

Attacks Legislature

The governor then attacked the legislature saying that everything in the power of the members was done to humiliate him and defeat his reelection. He said that there was some talk of the legislature impeaching him, but it wasn't attempted because that body was composed of a set of cowardly liars who were afraid. He said that the general assembly is being led by two North Carolinians, and that one of these had been made independently rich off of the fees received from the graft cases. He says that he expects to tell the people of this man's county (Chesterfield, referring to Mr. Stevenson) during the campaign this summer just what sort of a man they are sending to represent them. "If the people of the state would send down to Columbia a general assembly composed of Josh Ashley's we would have a general assembly worth having," said the speaker.

The governor said that some people criticized him for refusing to appoint officers recommended by the senate. "Of course I did. Have you ever heard of the Lord's kissing the hand of the devil. I will not appoint an enemy of mine to public office."

Gov. Blease attacked Senator Sullivan, who he said, didn't like Blease because he defeated his nephew (Col. Featherstone) for the governorship.

He said that the senator is one of the commission investigating graft charges, and that he and all the other members of the commission are enemies of the governor. He ridiculed the procedure of the investigation, stating that the men under investigation were first to take the witness stand.

"The men composing that commission hate me worse than the devil hates holy water," said Gov. Blease. "There is Senator Carlisle from Spartanburg, who has been going around making dirty attacks upon me; there is Senator Sullivan from this county, who has been quoted as saying that if he and the governor were in hell together and that he (Sullivan) was handling the shovel in throwing coal that he would refuse to throw coal on the governor because he hates him so much. And I'll state that I wouldn't let Sullivan throw coal on me, either then there is Cary who comes from Oconee. He is the man who stated on the floor of the house that a' he wanted to know about a measure was whether I was for or against it, and that he would vote just the opposite way. There is that little fellow Evans who hails from Marlboro county. Young Evans got mad with me because I wouldn't call a special session of the legislature to deal with the cotton question just to please him and a few of his friends."

The speaker then turned to the newspapers and to the people who are saying that Blease is losing ground. He said that the newspapers publish big, long stories about his opponent, telling of the tremendous crowds hearing him, and of the ovations, when his opponent is being heard in school rooms by 35 or 40 men, some women and children, and that they have howled him down.

The governor said that he had been asked to pardon a white man sent up for 18 months for fighting; that he had served 14 months and that his wife and little children were needing him for a support. He took a hand primary of the crowd, and when the yells were for him to give the man a pardon Gov. Blease said that the man will come into Anderson next Tuesday morning.

Mr. Carey's Statement

Mr. Carey gave the following copy to the press, it being a copy of a letter he wrote to the Editor of The State:

"Gov. Blease in his speech here today, after paying his respects to the investigating committee in general and specifically to Senators Carlisle and Sullivan, using this language: 'Take this man Carey of Oconee, a bitter enemy of mine, who said on the floor of the house all he wanted to know in voting for any measure was as to whether the governor was against it. At the moment I told him and the crowd that I denied the truth of any such statement. After he had finished his speech I met him at the steps of the court house and demanded his authority for any such statement. His reply was, 'Carey, I don't want to have anything to say to you for the way you have treated me on that committee.' Pressed again for this authority he said, 'I read it in the Columbia State, your prayer book.' Now if any such statement emanated from me on the floor of the house I have absolutely no recollection of it, and write to ask that you furnish me with a copy of the issue of your paper in which this appeared. The whole crowd can substantiate what the governor said in his speech while the correspondent of the Atlanta Journal can verify what was said by us face to face."

Devoe Takes Least Gallons: Always

Point Devoe; it's the cheapest paint in the world; never mind the price; it may or may not be more. Less gallons will paint the house; and the paint will outwear anything.

Skip wear; you've got to wait, to find that out. It covers more; you haven't got to wait to find that out.

It's the cheapest of all; no matter about the price.

N. E. Watkins, Lott, Texas, used 13 gallons on his house before; bought 13 gallons Devoe for same house and had 6 left.

C. B. Edwards, of Edwards & Broughton, printers, Raleigh, N. C., used 30 gallons Devoe for same house; bought 30 gallons Devoe for same house and had 16 left.

That's how.

TITANTIC FOUNDERS.

BUT 900 YET HEARD FROM

Greatest Disaster in Maritime History—Barely Possible that Extent will be Diminished by Further News, Though Thread of Hope is Slight—Survivors Mostly Women and Children.

New York, April 15.—The Olympic dispatch follows:

"Carpathia reached the Titanic position at daybreak. Found boats and wreckage only. Titanic sank about 2:20 a. m. in 41.16 north; 50.14 west. All her boats accounted for, containing about 675 souls saved, crew and passengers included. Nearly all saved women and children. Leland liner California remained and searching exact position of disaster. Loss likely total 1,800 souls."

It is believed here that this is an error unless the Titanic had more passengers on board than reported.

Later dispatches from messages from the Carpathia, received at Boston, stated that the Cunarder had 866 survivors aboard.

The passenger list as given out shows 1,310 passengers and a crew of 860 or 2,170 in all. Deducting 866, the known saved, the indicated loss of life would be 1,104.

While the fate of the majority of 2,100 persons on board the mammoth White Star liner Titanic, which sank early yesterday on the Newfoundland banks after a collision with an iceberg, still remains in doubt, and it is feared more than 1,200 persons were lost, a note of good cheer came from the ocean waves by wireless between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning.

It was in the shape of a wireless message from the White Star liner Olympic, one of the vessels hovering near the scene of the disaster, flashing the news that 866 of the Titanic's passengers, mostly women and children, were being brought to port by the Cunarder Carpathia. Other messages later brought confirmatory tidings.

First reports were that the Carpathia had saved but 675 persons. The new figures reduced the list of those for whose fate fear was felt by nearly 200, and if, as seems probable, practically all those saved were passengers, it would appear that all but approximately 450 of the vessel's passengers are accounted for.

A partial list of the survivors received from the Carpathia included the names of many women of prominence who were on the steamer.

Veil of Silence

After the first desperate calls of the Titanic for help had been sent flying through space and brought steamers for hundreds of miles around speeding to the scene, what seems to have been an impenetrable wall of silence was raised between her and the anxious world. The line so far as last night advices appear, went to her fate without so much as a whisper of what must have been the scene of terrible tragedy enacted in her decks. In the lack of even a line from a survivor, imagination pauses before even trying to conjecture what passed as the 2,000 human lives with which she was freighted there could be hope of saving, as it appears, far less than half.

Other than the news last evening that 866 persons, mostly women and children, had been rescued from the liner's boats by the Cunarder Carpathia, several hours passed without a word as to the fate of the remainder of those on board at the time of the fateful crash.

Wireless at Work

Along the entire Atlantic coast wire less instruments were turned to catch from any source the slightest whisper of hope that might come from one of the many steamships which rushed to the rescue of the stricken Titan of the seas. But from none of the ships reported to be near the scene of what, viewed in the light of probabilities, may be recorded as the world's greatest marine horror, came the slightest syllable of encouragement to the anxious waiting world.

Early last night there was hope that any moment might bring word of cheer. But anxiety deepened and many friends and relatives of those who sailed on the Titanic began to despair as hour after hour passed and the night grew old without word from either of the Allan liners, Parisian or Virginian, believed to be with the exception of the Carpathia, the vessels nearest the Titanic's ocean burial place when she made her plunge.

As the Titanic sank before 3 o'clock in the morning and it was not hoped that the Virginian could reach the scene before 10 a. m. at the earliest, while the Parisian was said to be some distance further away, it was feared even by the White Star officials, trying their best to calculate differently and yet accurately, that they would not have reached the scene in time to be of service.

The steamer Virginian was finally heard from at 2:15 o'clock this morning. She did not report the presence of any survivors on board, the message from her stating that she would bring to St. John's N. F., such survivors as "she may rescue." The fact that the Virginian was to go out of her course to put into St. John's on her voyage to Liverpool was taken as a favorable indication, raising hope that after all she might have picked up some of the victims of the wreck and was bringing them into port.

News of the sinking of the liner and the terrible loss of life in consequence came early last evening with all the greater shock because hope had been buoyed up day by reports that the steamer, although badly damaged, was not in a sinking condition and that all her passengers had been safely taken off. The messages were mostly unofficial, and none came direct from the liner, so that a lurking fear remained of possible bad news to come.

Ship Had Gone Down

Shortly after 7 o'clock last night there came flashing over the wires from Cape Race, within 400 miles of where the liner had struck the iceberg, word that at 2:39 o'clock Monday morning, 4:55 minutes after receiving her death blow, the Titanic had sunk. The news came from the steamer Carpathia, relayed by the White Star liner Olympic, and revealed that by the time the Carpathia, outward bound from New York and racing for the Titanic on a wireless call, reached the scene, the doomed vessel had sunk.

Left on the surface, however, were lifeboats from the Titanic, and in them, as appears from the meagre reports received up to a late hour, were some 675 survivors of the disaster. These, according to the advices, the Carpathia picked up and now is on her way with them for New York.

Biggest in the World

For the rest, the scene as the Carpathia came up was one of desolation. All that remained of the $10,000,000 floating palace, on which nearly 1,400 passengers had been voyaging luxuriously to this side of the Atlantic, were some bits of wreckage. The biggest ship in the world had gone down, snuffing out in her downward plunge, it appeared hundreds of human lives.

A significant line in the Cape Race dispatch was the announcement that of those saved by the Carpathia nearly all were women and children. Should it prove that no other vessel picked up any passengers of the sinking liner this might mean that few of the men on board had been saved as the proportion of women and children among the passengers was large. The same facts would likewise spell the doom of practically the entire crew of 800.

In the cabins were 230 women and children, but it is not known how many there were among the 740 third-class passengers.

In the first cabin there were 128 women and 15 children, and in the second cabin 79 women and 3 children.

Notable Persons Aboard

Notable persons, travelers on the Titanic, whose fate was in doubt in the lack of definite advices as to the identity of the survivors were: Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Maj. Archibald Butt, aide to President Taft; Charles M. Hayes, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific of Canada, his wife and daughter; W. T. Stead, Benj. Guggenheim, F. D. Millet, the artist, and J. G. Widener of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Isador Straus, J. B. Thayer, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad; J. B. Ismay, Henry H. H. Tarriss, the theatrical manager and Mrs. Harris and Col. Washington Roebing, builder of the Brooklyn bridge.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION.

At Abbeville, S. C., for Abbeville County, Saturday, May 4, 1912.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the place named above, as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Abbeville and other vacancies as they may occur on rural routes at post offices in the above-named county, unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 18 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military or naval service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a post office in the county for which examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application Form 1341, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. Applications should be promptly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington. As examination papers are shipped direct from the Commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The Commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers.

An eligible register for the position of rural letter carrier will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post office in such county. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other position in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules.

JOHN C. BLACK, President.

Eligibles on registers established prior to March 1, 1912, can be considered for appointment only at the office for which they were examined. Such eligibles may be examined within one year from the date of their former examination upon filing applications showing that they meet the requirements of the new examination, their old eligibility for their home offices not being canceled.

Singing Convention.

The Abbeville County Singing Convention will meet at Little River Baptist Church on 27th and 28th this month.

Charles D. Tillman will be here—has already shipped a piano direct from the factory for the use of the convention. His daughter will be with him to play the piano. This piano will be for sale at factory price and fully guaranteed for 30 years. Anyone wishing to buy a piano will have the opportunity to do so on Saturday or Monday. Mr. Tillman has one of these pianos in his own home and will save the purchaser from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dollars.

Prof. McD. Wrens of the Simpsonville Music School will bring a quartet with him. Other professors high in music will be with us.
