NEWS FROM TITANIC COMING IN SLOWLY

No Definite Report or Complete List of the Saved—Britain Indignant Over Scarcity of Life Boats.

[By Associated Press.]
New York, April 17.—(3:30 p. m.)—Wireless communication with survivors of Titanic disaster practically dead silent.

New York, April 17.—All hope is officially abandoned that other survivors of the Titanic disaster than those on the Carpathia, notwithstanding a startling Campdown wireless messages. Estimates here of the dead still remain at 1312.

The cable ship Mackay Bennett left Halifax, N. S., today carrying coffins and embalming material hoping to pick up bodies of the dead floating on the waves.

There is still no wireless communication from the Carpathia to tell how the Titanic sank or who went down with it. The wireless should begin any minute today.

It now appears that Monday's reports that the Titanic was safe were merely rumors and not deliberate fakes of wireless amateurs.

A wireless from the Carpathia still gives no information.

The Carpathia reported she sighted twenty icebergs near where the Titanic sank.

New York, April 17.—The Associated Press received the following message from the Campdown wireless station this afternoon:

"We are in communication with the Carpathia and in a position to announce officially that the Titanic struck an enormous iceberg and sunk. Over two thousand lives lost. There are seven hundred survivors, mostly women, on the Carpathia."

Questioned as to the accuracy of these figures, the Campdown station replied that the Carpathia knows nothing authentic about the number of lives lost. It is said passengers who boarded the Titanic at Chesbourg probably will bring up the death list higher than heretofore estimated.

The message also said there were seven hundred and ten survivors aboard the Carpathia, evidently meaning passengers, the other survivors being members of the crew.

Washington, April 17.—The navy department has a wireless message from the cruiser Chester declaring the names of all first and second-class passengers saved on the Carpathia have already been wired to shore. This seems to leave scant hope that men like John Jacob Astor, Col. William T. Stead and Maj. Archie Butt were saved, as their names were never mentioned. The Chester says only third-class survivors' names remain to be reported.

Washington, April 17.—A congressional committee will summon the Titanic survivors before it to tell their stories concerning the inability of the steamship officials to save all aboard the Titanic.

London, April 17.—Jacques Futrelle, the noted author, is among the survivors on the Carpathia, also his wife.

All Women Reported Saved.

New York, April 17.—Mrs. Caroline Bonnell, one of the survivors, wired from the Carpathia that all women aboard the Titanic were saved.

Great Britain Indignant.

[By Associated Press.]
London, April 17.—The general British public is indignant at learning the Titanic did not carry enough life boats for all on board. The members of parliament want an investigation of Monday's false reports that the Titanic was safe.

A. & M. CADET BADLY INJURED

Was Run Down by Horse That Was Running Loose on the Campus.

Joseph William Love, aged 17 years, son of J. B. Love of Salado, Bell county, was badly injured this morning by a runaway horse.

Young Love is a student of A. & M. College, being in his freshman year, preparing to take the course in electrical engineering. About 9 o'clock he was passing across the campus to his room from a class, with a large number of other students. A big black horse belonging to the college, that had become loose and was running wild, approached the body of cadets in his mad flight. All the boys took to their heels to avoid him, and, as one of the spectators says, the horse went through the thinnest bunch of them. Young Love was directly in his path and could not get out of the way. The horse, however, appeared to try to avoid the boy and reared up to leap over him as he would take a hurdle. His fore foot struck the boy in the face, breaking his nose and causing concussion which resulted in unconsciousness. The lad was taken to the hospital and was attended by College Surgeon Otto Ehlinger. He soon regained consciousness, and while he is painfully hurt it is believed he will recover all right from his injuries.

The boy is a son of J. B. Love, a stock farmer of Salado, Bell county. He graduated at the Thomas Arnold High School in May, 1911, and entered A. & M. College on his diploma from that institution.

THE BAPTIST REVIVAL

Live Sermons and Fine Crowds Present at Every Service in Tent.

Evangelist Ham continues to preach to church members and scores them for inconsistencies and sins in their hypocritical lives. Last night his subject was "What is a Christian?" The evangelist showed him to be a man who stood for Jesus amid derisions, scoffs, abuses and tortures. The Christians were called such in derision, yet they bore the name without shame. The real Christians will not be discouraged at the evil intentions of the world. They expect, if they live for Christ, to have the world to hate them. The average church member of today courts the world. What the churches need is Christianity, not religion. The heathen world is full of religion. The Pharisees were religionists of a high order. Christ in the heart is what we need.

Mr. Ham condemns dancing, card playing and theatre-going, but he does not fail to show up cursing and drunkenness with lust and adultery, and the rest of the category of sins in their right colors.

The sermon this morning was on "The Good Samaritan," or, as he named it, "The Parable of the Highway." He said there were the sick, suffering and dying on life's highway that Christians can help if they only will, but how few are doing it. Like the priest and the Levite, they pass by on the other side. The Good Samaritan was the one, and the only one, who represented redeeming love.

Tonight he speaks on "The Home." Come out. Services at 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.
