DR. FRAUENTHAL WAS RESCUED

Although his picture appears in this morning's Arkansas Gazette as one of the notable men who were lost on the Titanic, Dr. Henry W. Frauenthal of New York was among those rescued from the ill-fated vessel. Dr. Frauenthal, a cousin of Dr. Frauenthal, received a telegram this morning announcing that Dr. Frauenthal, his bride, and his brother, I. G. Frauenthal, arrived safely off the Carpathia last night.

1,595 WERE LOST IN TITANIC DISASTER

ONLY 745 WERE SAVED

RESCUE SHIP CARPATHIA
COMES INTO PORT WITH TI-TANIC SURVIVORS.

New York, April 19.—How the White Star liner, Titanic, the largest ship afloat, sank off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland last Monday morning, carry to their death 1,601 of the 2,340 persons aboard, was told to the world in all its awful details for the first time last night with the arrival in New York of the Cunard liner Carpathia, bearing the exhausted survivors of the catastrophe. Of the great facts that stand out from the account of the tragedy, these are the most salient:

The death list has been increased, rather than decreased. Six persons died after being rescued. The list of prominent persons lost stands as previously reported. Practically every woman and child, with the exception of those who refused to leave their husbands, were saved.

The survivors in the lifeboats saw the lights on the stricken vessel glimmer to the last, heard her band playing "Nearer my God to Thee," say the doomed hundreds on her deck, and heard their groans and cries when the vessel sank.

The following tabulation of the passengers and crew on board the Titanic, together with those saved and lost, has been compiled from the figures in the statement issued by the committee of passengers:

Approximate number of passengers aboard—First-class 330, second-class 320, third-class 750.

Officers and crew, 940.

Total, 2,340.

Number of passengers saved by Carpathia—First-class 210, second-class 125, third-class 200.

Total passengers saved, 535.

Member of crew saved—Officers 4, seamen 39, stewards 96, firemen 71.

Total members of crew saved, 210.

Total saved, passengers and crew, 745.

Total number perished, 1,595.

Six of those saved died later.

First and second-class passengers, 650.

First and second-class passengers saved, 335.

Total cabin passengers lost, 315.

Colonel Archibald Gracie, United States army, the last man saved, went down with the vessel, but was picked up. He was met last night by his daughter, who had arrived from Washington, and his son-in-law, Paul P. Fabricius. Col. Gracie told a remarkable story of personal hardship, and denied emphatically the report that there had been any panic on board. He praised in the highest terms the behavior of both the passengers and crew, and gave a high tribute to the heroism of the women passengers.

Col. Gracie told of how he was driven to the topmost deck when the ship settled, and was the sole survivor after the wave that swept her up before her final plunge had passed.

"I jumped with the wave," said he. "Eventually I came to the surface, to find the sea a mass of tangled wreckage.

"Luckily I was unhurt, and, casting about, managed to seize a wooden grating floating nearby. When I had recovered my breath I discovered a larger canvass and cork-like raft, which had floated up. A man, whose name I did not learn, was struggling toward it from some wreckage to which he had clung. I cast off and helped him to get on to the raft, and we then began the work of rescuing those who had jumped into the sea and were floundering in the water.

"When dawn broke there were 30 of us on the raft, standing knee-deep in the icy water and afraid to move lest the cranky craft be overturned. Several unfortunates, benumbed and half-dead, besought us to save them, and one or two made an effort to reach us, but we had to warn them away. Had we made any effort to save them we all might have perished.

"The hours that elapsed before we were picked up by the Carpathia were the longest and most terrible that I ever spent. Practically without any sensation of feeling because of the icy water, we were almost dropping from fatigue. We were afraid to turn around to see whether we were seen by passing craft, and when someone who was facing astern passed the word that something that looked like a steamer was coming up, one of the men became hysterical under the strain. The rest of us, too, were nearing the breaking point."

Col. Gracie was in his berth when the vessel smashed into the berg, and was aroused by the jar. He looked at his watch, he said, and found it was just midnight. The ship sank with him at 2:20 a. m., for his watch stopped at that hour.

MAYOR ORDERS SUNDAY LID ON

PROCLAMATION IS ISSUED

INSTRUCTING THAT STORES
OF CONWAY BE KEPT CLOS-ED ON SUNDAYS.

Mayor W. H. Duncan has decided upon a more rigid enforcement of the Sabbath closing laws in Conway, and today issued a proclamation ordering that all stores in the city be kept closed on Sundays, beginning April 21. Mayor Duncan stated that complaints of violation of this law had become numerous and he felt the time had come for a strict enforcement of this law. "I don't want to do anything sensational or radical," he said, "but I believe we have been too lax in our enforcement of this law, and it is my opinion that it is best for all concerned that all of the stores should be kept closed on the Sabbath, as the law requires."

The proclamation issued by Mayor Duncan is as follows:

"PROCLAMATION."

"Being convinced that I will be upheld by the city council and a majority of the people of Conway, it is my order that the stores of the city be closed on Sunday, beginning April 21, 1912, and that as far as possible the Lord's day be observed."

"W. H. DUNCAN, Mayor."

COL. ROOSEVELT HERE TOMORROW

Up to press time this afternoon no news had been received here as to the hour Col. Roosevelt will stop at Conway on his trip from Fort Smith to Little Rock tomorrow. The former president will ride on a special train, which will leave Fort Smith about noon and arrive at Little Rock about 6 o'clock. The running time from Conway to Little Rock is one hour, and Col. Roosevelt's stop here will probably be about 5 o'clock, though the exact time could not be learned this afternoon.

AGED FISHERMAN DIES SUDDENLY

D. W. Watkins, an aged fisherman and farmer who lived on Palmar creek, two miles northeast of Mayflower, died suddenly near the banks of the creek yesterday morning. Mr. Watkins had gone from his home early in the morning to run his nets and the exertion evidently brought on a hemorrhage which caused his death. He was alone when the attack came on and the circumstances showed that he had made his way to the creek bank and walked a distance of about 50 yards before he fell. The presence of the blood and the fact that he was heard to call for aid at first led to the belief that foul play was the cause of his death, and a coroner's inquest was held over the body, but the verdict was that death occurred from natural causes. The body was buried at Antioch cemetery this morning. Mr. Watkins is survived by his wife, one son, J. D. Watkins, and one daughter, Miss Molly Watkins.
